

“It is not only for an exterior show or ostentation that our soul must play her part, but inwardly within ourselves, where no eyes shine but ours.”
—Montaigne

*A Poetry and Philosophy of insight moving with might
Knowledge coming strong and tight
Thoughts roaming oft aloft blowing aright
What permeates is a greater intelligence and more insight*

Purpose

The other day I met a metaphysical physicist who was a mystical mysticist. He told me things I knew and didn't know. I understood his oratory—the Whole is the One, a wave field emanating. I was told to meditate, relatively relate. I did and continue to do so. Then I ran into him again and he told me something more. He said will-power, concentration, certainty of purpose and self-control was what I was looking for. He warned me about ambition, initiative and greed. Said I should forget about indifference, indecision, doubt and worry. No more excuses, alibis, apologies, criticism or envy either. I am to find a balance, my polarity. “So long,” I said to the metaphysical physicist who was a mystical mysticist, “until we meet again.”

The Encounter

Prose and Poetry of

SEED

ROOTS

by

The Bohemian

Realities

*Even the Ancients knew
Seeking wisdom and truth Finding ultimate proof . . .*

*The philosophical aspects of self-knowing Vibes in the mind congruently flowing
From the inward growth, outward growing . . .*

Know Thyself

The flesh is the temple for the soul. Each human being has been honored by being created from cosmic force — a life energy where there wasn't, in time and space before. An entity with thoughts, feelings, emotions, purpose, existence, survival, wants, needs. The flesh grounds and houses the soul, but the soul still soars.

The Soul Incarnate in Flesh

Writing is an important activity. 'Tis needless to waste space and time on mundane drivel. The written word can take the mind on a journey. Thoughts connect, disconnect, interconnect. Writing can take you many places, depending on the focused bent of the moment. A blank sheet of paper takes on meaning and form. The words marry into ideas, concepts, understanding, creativity, logic, reason and more.

Focusing Thoughts

Living a Transcending Life

It's who's doing what that counts, relative to the environments and empirical experience your individual life travels. The inter-relatedness of people infiltrates so many aspects of daily life. Some things seem like they happen as an accident, coincidence or serendipity—but do they? What is the true fiber of this fabric called life? What is the connection of the individual spirit to the Infinite? How can you know for sure? Self-awareness evolving with growth in understanding?

What is this?

*Like a child playing games in fantasy
Constantly poking holes into reality
Images, words and visions of mystery
Mind & Soul of purity
Encapsuled in a body with duties
Obligations and responsibilities
The grounding with reality*

What is this? Human Life!

A brief word from the Author:

“The goal
The object
The point
The message . . . recapitulated . . .

It all begins and ends with the self, for that soul is you.”